Actress Tells Side Of Work in Film Patrons Have Never Seen

The old favorites of the motion picture patrons seem to be coming back to their own, if the announcements of the producing companies go for anything. Florence Turner and Muriel Ostriche are the latest of these to have their names spread big before the public along with the newer stars who have come into the pictures. That small group of actors and actresses who started out with motion pictures and attained a very motion pictures and attained a very bish degree of popularity are not seen so often in these days of so-called feature productions. In his address to the exhibitors of Wash-ington last week, S. L. Rothapfel, of New York, called attention to the carefulness with which Griffith pro-duced some of the old Blagraph one-reel films, and declared he did not believe the same fidelity to detail and artistic production had been equaled in the more elaborate films of recent days.

To these old actors and actresses-To these old actors and actresses—at least they seem old in comparison with the newer growth—the film patron owes a big debt of gratitude.
Miss Roberts was one of the experienced actresses of the stage who was attracted to the films by reason of the fact that she foresaw their big future. She was one of the few who believed in the artistic value of a film production, and despite many discouragements she stuck to her ideal.

Miss Roberts is announced to appear as leading woman with Albert Chevalier in a film adaptation of "My Old Dutch." one of the famous songs that English music hall artist made popular in this country and Europe. Mr. Chevalier helped make a film drama of the song himself, and when asked to select a cast for it by the Universal company picked Miss Roberts to be his leading woman. Miss Roberts has been given a very important part in the production, which is shortly to be shown in Washington.

Miss Ostriche has recently appeared in several releases of the Vitagraph company, and is now a member of the forces of the Equitable company. She has been seen in all the various phases of a motion picture actress work, from extra girl to leading woman, and is thoroughly acquainted with all branches of the business. She believes that perfect pictures will not be possible until perfect harmony exists between the director and the actors. "Many times I have been in an audlence at a motion picture exhibition when a film in which I have taken part is shown, and heard adverse of the opportunities presented to me," Miss Ostriche declares.

"How I would like to go on the stage and enlighten such audiences. How I would have sacrificed everything if only I could have told them how, while the big scene was being taken, Mr. Blank, the director, was frothing at some trivial incident. How I would have loved to tell them how, that very afternoon, the director had flung his coat upon the floor and in primeval anger wiped his shoes on the coat. But this was impossible. This, the unseen side of film acting, was not for the public. Not for the ears of my friends. Not meant to dispel the magic illusion screen work builds up in the spectator. All must be rosy in the minds of the motion picture audience, clae the hallucination is gone.

True, all directors have not been bring forth what lies latent in his subject.

"My latest effort, and my first for the Equitable Motion Pictures Corporation, proves every contention I have made. The contentions are: Absolute harmony must exist between director and actor. Courtesy and a bond of good fellowship must characterize the two important elements, director and cast. Equal intelligence of actor and director. Favoritism in the studio must disappear. Absolute knowledge of the theme and subject by both director and cast.

"When the actor and director meet on a plane of absolute equality, aggressiveness and hostility disappear and the bonds of co-operation and friendship seal the work with harmony, then will the every picture result in 50 per cent better acting and 100 per cent greater effectiveness."

What to Eat and Prevent Indigestion

Indigestion and tractically a I forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity, therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its mature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Those sufferers who have been obliged to ex-clude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten prod-ucts, should try a meal of any food or foods in moderate amount, taking im-mediately afterwards a teaspoonful of blaurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bisurated magnesia is doubtless the best corrective and antacid known, I has direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could be possibly done by any drug or medicine. Do not dose an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs, but get rid of the acid-the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meak take some of the bisurated magnesia as directed above, and note remarkable results.

WALL ST. MILLIONS

Hundred Commission Five Houses Entrust $150,000,-000 to Youthful Messengers

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.-Running and lodging through the streets of the financial district in these days of tremendou dealings in war stocks scurries a small army of messenger boys, who strapped to their waists small fortunes in negotiable securities and certified checks. They are scarcely noticed in the crush of speculators and clerks, but they carry bits of paper worth in the aggregate $150,000,000 a day.

Small, insignificant youngsters they are, with old, battered leather wallets

Small, insignificant youngsters they are, with old, battered leather wallets chained to them, but they are the visible manifestation of the fortunes that are made these days in the street. It is not unusual for a boy to be standing open-mouthed near a suffrage orator with $50,000 tacked onto him which he has forgotten in the spell of the woman's oratory. They are just bits of paper to him; bits of paper with funny markings.

Since the rush of popular speculation hit Wall Street the commission houses have been hiring new boys every day. There are about 500 of these houses in the menery district, and they employ an average of rive boys each, who carry. They are fust bitten they are in the total to the transfer offices, and checks to be certified. They are picked without much discrimination by the brokerage houses and the measenger offices, but so far there has not been a single theft of the valuable papers they carry.

This is not remarkable, because of the system by which a check is kept upon all securities sent to the banks. If one of the boys should get into the hands of a crook who ammorniated the securities and checks the thief would indice a mighty hard job to dispose of them. A few hours after they were missed, which would be soon after the time they every cashier in the country would have before him the numbers of the stocks and checks on who transfer and payment had been stopped.

A broker to whose attention the market of 1,00,000 share, which is an average in these war times, the average stock transactions would always business, and all this is handled by the measenger boys.

Most of the boys are recruited from the companies which supply messengers, The companies are told every morning how many boys each firm will want. The Wall Street district is donded with detectives and special policemen these days.

The cabinet came from the rooms of the Psychological Research Society, coaducted by Lake and Christen P. Christiansen. Mrs. Adele S. Priess, of police headquarters, charged Lake with fortune telling and practicing medicine without being registered as a physician. Christiansen's case was adjourned.

Mrs. Priess testified Lake had treated her medically for fancied ailments; she had sat in the cabinet with him and heard world whispers advising a course of treatment.

"Who produces, who controls the spirits in this cabinet?" Assistant District Attorney Spies asked Lake.

"I have no control over them." Lake replied. "When I go in the cabinet the spirits pass by. It is a magnetic and invisible force within the cabinet that operates on the spirits."

Lake was held in 1500 ball.
